the rocket straight from the forest. I was furious for a moment, but I calmed down; it was not, Diamond sat upright and still. He had been getting some of his father's height and girth lately, and looked very much a man, though a very young one. year's leaf by her hand. He smiled again. "You're a beautiful woman," he said, but plainly, not in the flattering way he. Imagination like all living things lives now, and it lives with, from, on true change. Like all we. "I'll stay here if I may," he said in that princely way, with his teeth chattering, holding on to the doorjamb to keep on his feet. He stood there for a while, bewildered. It seemed to him that it was not by his own act or decision that he had taken his own form, but that in touching this ground, this hill, he had become himself. A magic greater than his own prevailed here. brilliance, black facades; the brilliance gave way slowly to stone; the carriage stopped. I got off. "Yes," Irioth said. "I understand. You are a kind woman." She was talking about him, about his not knowing what he was doing. She was forgiving him. "A kind sister," he said. The words were so new to him, words he had never said or thought before, that he thought he had spoken them in the True Speech, which he must not speak. But she only shrugged, with a frowning smile. bring the girl back to health. "It is. They did that? Good." "Oh, sir," she said, and he knew he had done wrong. soul! But they put men where we put the world. And so they hold that a true wizard must be a man. Sorcery was practiced by men-its only real distinction from witchery. Sorcerers trained one. "Would you like some fresh curds? It makes a good breakfast." She was eyeing him, but not for long, and not meeting his eyes. Like an animal, like a cat, she was, sizing him up but not challenging. There was a cat, a big grey, sitting on his four paws on the hearth gazing at the coals. Irioth accepted the bowl and spoon she handed him and sat down on the settle. The cat jumped up beside him and purred. Songs and stories indicate that dragons existed before any other living creature. The Old Hardic. He went slowly round to the eastern side of the hilltop, bright and warm already with the light of the sun a couple of fingers' width above the horizon. Looking under the sun he saw the roofs of a town at the head of a bay that opened out eastward, and beyond it the high line of the sea's edge across half the world. Turning west he saw fields and pastures and roads. To the north were long green hills. In a fold of land southward a grove of tall trees drew his gaze and held it. He thought it was the beginning of a great forest like Faliern on Havnor, and then did not know why he thought so, since beyond the grove he could see treeless heaths and pastures. portions thereof in any form whatsoever except as provided by the. wasn't the first night, nor the first nights, they passed together that gave either of them much. Summoner, master of the spells that call the spirits of the living and the dead. But beyond the rich and the lordly were those called the Men of Power: the wizards. She was surprised. him as he was said to use people, emptying their minds like little sacks, then everyone on Roke. He asked Birch about the place. "That's Iria," Birch said - "Old Iria, I mean to say. I own the house by rights. But after a century of feuds and fights over it, my granddad let the place go to settle the quarrel. Though the Master there would still be quarrelling with me if he didn't keep too drunk to talk. Haven't seen the old man for years. He had a daughter, I think." Women who work magic may practice periods of celibacy as well as fasting and other disciplines believed to purify and concentrate power; but most witches lead active sexual lives, having more freedom than most village women and less need to fear abuse. Many pledge "witch-troth" with another witch or an ordinary woman. They do not often marry men, and if they do, they are likely to choose a sorcerer. are going to destroy them. A hundred ships will sail from the Great Port, from Omer and South Port. now here I was flying. This final journey was to end in fifteen minutes. let a fair wind loose or to capture a contrary one. Maybe it was only for show, but every. The coppers weren't decently in a bag, even. Irioth had to hold out his hand, and the cattleman laid out six copper pennies in it, one by one. "Now then! That's fair and square!" he said, expansive. "And maybe you'll be looking at my yearlings over in the Long Pond pastures, in the next day or so." "She saved me but I couldn't save her," he said fiercely to the men and women of the mountain. Diamond cried, and was carried off in a swirl of young men and women, all laughing and chattering. Hearing of this, Orm's dragon anger woke again, and he "leapt for Havnor like an arrow of fire."
